Task 4 RE- Hinduism

Many people think that Hindus believe in more than one god but this is not correct. In Hinduism there is only one god but many ways to describe god. Hindus believe because god is so perfect and complex, words are not enough to describe god. In Hinduism, god has so many qualities that people see god differently. God (known as Brahman in the Hindu faith.) is neither, male or female as is referred to as the supreme being or it.

To help people know what god is like there are many deities to show the qualities that god has and Hindus worship Brahman through them.

Task - To understand the idea of Hindu deities being part of the same god, I want you to think about the different roles you have. For example, I am a father, a brother, a teacher, a cyclist, a reader but I am one person. Draw a picture of yourself and outside label it with all the qualities you use in your different roles. For example, for me as a teacher I might be kind, patient and knowledgeable. How might people see you in the different roles you have.
